The roads running through Flatlands have until 1896 to settle the question.

Railr ad officials were inclined to-day to believe that in the end the fares would be reduced. Henry W. Slocum, son of the late Gen. Slocum, said:

"A portion of our road, the Coney Island, and and Brooklyn, runs to the Park Plaza, and at that point we have another line running to Coney Island. At present 'he fare will not be reduced, because we run through New Utrecht. Even after July 1 it is a question whether we can be compelled to reduce the fare, as the two roads are separate. The matter has been submitted to the counsel of the Brooklyn City road, said:

"Two of our lines, the Third avenue and the Ninth avenue, charge 10 cents, but as they run through New Utrecht and Flatlands, the question cannot be decided until those towns are annexed."

He was inclined to believe, however, that there would be a general reduction by all roads now charging extra fares.

It is also expected the 25-cent excursion fare, charged by the steam roads to Coney Island, will be reduced.
